Passage 1: Read the passage below and answer the next 5 questions. Choose the correct option A, B, C, or D to answer each given question.

In today's workplace, the environment plays a big role in employee well-being and productivity. A comfortable workspace with proper lighting, good temperature control, and enough space can help employees stay focused and perform better. Many companies now prioritize creating a pleasant work environment to improve employee satisfaction.

Communication is another important factor in a successful workplace. When employees communicate clearly and regularly, they can work together more effectively, solve problems faster, and avoid misunderstandings. Team meetings and feedback sessions are key to keeping everyone on the same page.

Workplace culture also affects employee happiness. Companies that promote respect, inclusivity, and collaboration tend to have more motivated employees. A positive culture helps employees feel valued, which leads to higher job satisfaction and less turnover.

However, maintaining work-life balance can be challenging for many employees. To help with this, some companies offer flexible working hours or allow employees to work from home. This flexibility allows workers to manage their personal lives while still being productive at work.

In conclusion, a well-designed workplace, good communication, a supportive culture, and work-life balance are all important for creating a happy and productive work environment.

Passage 2: Read the passage below and answer the next 5 questions. Choose the correct option A, B, C, or D to answer each given question.

The media plays a powerful role in modern society, shaping how people view the world and access information. Television, newspapers, radio, and the internet provide news, entertainment, and education to millions of people every day. With the rise of social media platforms, information spreads faster than ever before.

One advantage of the media is its ability to connect people globally. News from one part of the world can reach others instantly, helping people stay informed about international events. Social media also allows individuals to share their own opinions and stories, making communication more interactive.

However, there are challenges associated with media consumption. One major concern is the spread of misinformation, which can lead to confusion and mistrust. It is essential for people to evaluate sources carefully and rely on trustworthy outlets for accurate news.

The media also influences public opinion and behavior. Advertisements, for example, can shape what people buy or how they view certain products. Additionally, entertainment programs and news stories often reflect cultural values and trends, impacting how society evolves.

In conclusion, while the media offers many benefits, such as global connection and access to information, it is important to use it wisely and critically.

What is one role of the media mentioned in the passage?

- A. Providing news, entertainment, and education
- B. Promoting local-only news
